Mrs. Andrea Burns, Knob Noster, director of the Sunrise Day Care Center, 357 West Saline, assists two-year-old Terri Wade with a puzzle Monday on the first day of operation of the new center. The center is located in the Anthony Buckner apartment complex and is licensed by the state to care for 15

pre-school children, providing them with food, playtime and educational activities, while their mothers work. The center delayed opening for a week due to a shortage of enrollments. The center will be staffed by the director, a teacher, two aids and a cook. (Democrat-Capitol Photo)

Firemen's petition requests arbitration

Two local firemen representing Pettis County Firefighters Local 2228 presented attorney Earl Crawford a petition Monday requesting arbitration in the dispute between the county court and the union in the firing of county firefighter Danny Taylor.

Crawford, the court's retained counsel, said he would present the petition to the court Tuesday.

The petition was signed by the four members of Firefighter's Local 2228: Fire Chief Robert Sisemore, Robert E. Paxton, Howard Teague and Taylor.

Paxton and Robert Vogler, a city firefighter and state union official, presented the petition to Crawford.

Paxton said the decision to seek arbitration in the matter was made because the county court has refused to meet with local firefighters and local union officials requested a meeting last week.

The petition was filed with the court's attorney in conjunction with a state law that stipulates that an arbitration board shall be appointed after 51 per cent of the employees of a fire department sign the petition. Three other members of the county fire department did not sign the petition.

According to the statute, the arbitration board is to be composed of five members. Two are to be picked from a list of four names submitted by the firemen, two are to be picked from a similar list made out by the county court and the fifth is to be selected by the four chosen board members.

Besides submitting the petition, the firefighters also submitted its four persons (Please see ARBITRATION, Page 2)

Lincoln councilman tenders resignation

(Democrat-Capitol Service)

LINCOLN — Councilman Ralph McCubbin Monday announced his resignation from the city council here.

McCubbin's action came just three days after Lincoln voters voiced their disapproval of the council's Sept. 4 firing of city policeman Robert Salley by a 229-55 vote. McCubbin, Mayor John Coe and Councilman Charles Yancey voted to oust Salley. Councilmen Fred Hesse and Clarence Frisch cast the dissenting votes.

In his resignation announcement, McCubbin said in a prepared statement: "I have been urged by many to stay in office — that I was voted in and should remain. However, if a person can't represent the people who voted him in, and express what the people want and need, I hereby resign from the office of councilman, effective immediately."

The election was originally billed as "winner take all." All five of the councilmen had agreed that whichever side that gathers the fewest votes will resign. However, McCubbin, Coe and Yancey last week said the election was "not legal." Coe told The Democrat-Capitol that he would not resign if the decision went against him.

When contacted Monday, McCubbin said he would decline comment on whether the election results were the deciding factor in his resignation. "I have a business here... I'd just rather not comment," he said.

Coe could not be reached for comment, but his wife said the mayor would make a prepared statement "within a few days." She said Coe is not making statements on the matter at this time. Yancey could not be reached for comment.

Hesse said Monday the vote showed that Lincoln voters were "overwhelmingly" opposed to Salley's firing. The city policeman was subsequently replaced by Bob Rhodes.

Hesse said any move now to hire Salley back would "have to be taken up by the (Please see LINCOLN, Page 2)

Council to discuss elderly taxi program

The possibility of limiting the city-sponsored, elderly-assistance taxi program to a prescribed number of rides per unit of time per individual will be discussed by the city council at a special meeting at 7 o'clock tonight in the Municipal Building Conference Room.

Also scheduled to attend the meeting are Ray Hatfield, owner of the two local cab companies, Yellow Cab and City Cab, and Albert Cusick, an accountant for the two firms.

At a regular meeting of the council Oct. 1, Cusick announced that Hatfield would be willing to lower his current base rate to 50 cents to alleviate some of the financial load to the city and elderly patrons. Both cab companies are currently charging a 55 cent base rate fee.

Councilmen George Dugan and Carl Franklin and Mayor Jerry Jones indicated they believe some sort of limited service will have to be implemented in the near future to avert a financial crisis already looming because of the unexpected volume of business.

"We estimated it would cost the city approximately $900 for the first three months of operation, but it totaled nearly $4,500 for the first two months alone," Franklin said. "Based on this, it would probably cost the city $25,000 to $30,000 a year to keep up the program as it's presently set up."

Although stressing it was only a tentative idea, Franklin Monday morning proposed a system in which qualified citizens would be issued punchcards "good for a certain number of rides."

Jones said he believed the cards should

On battle progress

Israel, Syria issue contrasting reports

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel said Syrian forces were "in full retreat" from the Golan Heights toward Damascus today, but Syria said its troops had repulsed the Israelis and Egypt claimed it totally controlled the east bank of the Suez Canal.

The Israeli state radio said Israeli troops and armor pursued the retreating Syrians. The broadcast said Syrian soldiers were running away on foot and that Syrian columns began withdrawing toward Damascus, less than 40 miles from the battle lines.

Egypt, meanwhile, said its tanks punched deeper into the Sinai under cover from warplanes knocking out vital Israeli defenses. Israel said its forces were on the offensive and had destroyed all bridges across the Suez Canal, trapping Egyptian troops in the desert without supplies.

In Washington, President Nixon said the United States seeks support in the U.N. Security Council for a position "we hope and believe will be effective," but gave no indication as to the nature of the Mideast proposal the United States will present to the council.

The Israeli state radio's authoritative commentator, Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog, said Israeli tanks were slashing toward the canal with fresh crews and said Israel was near a "dramatic turning point" in the three-day-old war.

But an Egyptian communique broadcast by Cairo radio said the Israeli attempt to destroy cross-canal pontoon assault bridges had failed and Egyptian jets were blasting Israeli airfields in support of advancing Egyptian armor.

A communique from the Syrian military command also reported heavy fighting on the other major front, the Golan Heights near Israel's northeastern border with Syria. The Damascus broadcast claimed Syrian jets backing ground troops in the heights knocked down 32 more Israeli fighters.

That brought the kill count claimed by Syria and Egypt to more than a fourth of Israel's 480-plane air force. The Tel Aviv command has kept silent but declared it had command of the skies on both fronts.

In a reflection of tension brewed by the new war, South Yemeni air force MIGs forced down a British Overseas Airways 747 jumbo jet and held it in Aden for nearly three hours.

The craft was carrying 268 passengers and 19 crew members. Sources with the airline said it was allowed to take off for Nairobi, its original destination, without harm to those aboard. They attributed the grounding to a mixup over permission to fly over South Yemen, located at the southern end of the Arabian peninsula.

The communique from Cairo said the Egyptian jets struck Israeli air installations at Mileiz and Bir Tamada as well as missile and radar stations in the Sinai, which was seized from Egypt during Israel's lightning victory in 1967.

Saturday's outbreak of hostilities marked the first major Egyptian crossing of the waterway since the Israelis occupied it.

The Egyptians claimed the Israelis were suffering heavy losses in men, aircraft, missiles and armor. They claimed their forces "totally control" the eastern bank of the 103-mile-long canal.

The Israeli state radio reported that Israelis were still fighting Egyptian commandos who attacked Sharm el-Sheikh on the southern tip of the Sinai peninsula on the opening day of the war.

But Herzog said the deepest Egyptian penetration into the occupied Sinai was five miles. He claimed Egyptian units were aware their retreat had been cut off by destruction of the bridges "and their morale is not so good."

Israeli military communiques said that after fighting a holding action Saturday and Sunday while reserves were mobilized, Israel sent its warplanes deep into Egypt and Syria and pushed back Syrian attackers in the Golan Heights.

Says U.S. will propose action on Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP) — After exchanging personal messages with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, President Nixon said today the United States will propose action he hopes and believes "will be effective in stopping the fighting" in the Middle East.

After Nixon talked briefly with newsmen in his Oval Office, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler disclosed that Nixon and Brezhnev exchanged private messages Sunday that were channeled through the Soviet embassy here and the American embassy in Moscow. Ziegler said the Washington-Moscow "hotline" was not used.

Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said the United States was seeking broad international support for a move in the United Nations Security Council that they hope could lead to an end to the conflict.

Ziegler, conducting his first press briefing in weeks, said Kissinger has been in close touch with the foreign ministers of Egypt and Israel. Ziegler expressed the view that these contacts "perhaps give us a better opportunity" to promote an end to the fighting than was possible during the six-day Arab-Israeli war in 1967.

Ziegler said Kissinger has been in close touch with "all parties who have an interest in the area." He said the meetings included an unannounced meeting Saturday night with Huang Chen, head of Communist China's liaison office in Washington.

The press secretary said the U.S. objective is an end to the fighting followed by a search for an over-all Middle East settlement.

Because of the new Arab-Israeli conflict, Ziegler said Nixon is canceling plans to fly to Carthage, Tenn., Saturday to dedicate a dam named for former Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Asked if the United States felt the Soviet Union was prepared to urge restraint by its Arab allies as a result of the Nixon-Brezhnev exchanges, Ziegler said, "I don't think now is the time to characterize the attitude" of any other nation.

Ziegler said he could not get into details of Nixon's exchange with Brezhnev.

"It's a serious situation ... and we are doing everything we can on the diplomatic side," Ziegler said.

When a reporter asked if Nixon's cancellation of the planned trip to Tennessee reflected presidential pessimism over prospects for an early end to the fighting, Ziegler said he would not predict developments in the United Nations or on the battlefronts.

Israel and Arabs accuse each other

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Israel and the Arabs accused each other before the U.N. General Assembly today of launching the new Mideast war.

At the request of the United States, the Security Council also took up the conflict. A meeting was set for 3:30 p.m. EDT. The United Nations was deeply divided on what to do about the fighting.

Speaking before the 135-nation assembly, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban declared, "There is not a single man or woman inside or outside of this hall who doesn't know in his heart" that Egypt and Syria started the war.

He charged their attacks will go down in history "as one of the basest acts of which a government can have been responsible."

Syria's deputy foreign minister of state, Zakaria Ismael, charged that Israel had launched "massive attacks of such proportions" that Israel must have premeditated them.

He declared that "the salient feature is that they constitute an indescribable challenge of world public opinion and the international community."

The gallery was packed to hear the Israeli and Arab speeches.

U.S. officials in Washington said the United States would seek broad international support in the council to stop the fighting and head for an overall settlement.

Conflict seems certain to arise over the nature of any cease-fire contemplated by the council — the biggest stumbling block being whether it should be a cease-fire in place or a withdrawal to previous positions.

British efforts for a cease-fire appeal by the council president collapsed under Soviet, Chinese and nonaligned opposition.

The appeal would have been made by the president, Sir Laurence McIntyre of Australia, on behalf of all 15 council members. But the necessary unanimity could not be mustered because Israel's opponents insisted on a demand that Israel withdraw from all Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian territory occupied in the 1967 war.

The Arabs have not been pressing for meeting of the Security Council, nor has Israel. The five permanent members of the council can veto resolutions they don't like. The last veto cast in the council was by U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali on July 2 killing a resolution that strongly deplored Israel's failure to withdraw from the occupied territory.

Before the afternoon council meeting the 135-nation assembly was to hear statements on the new war from Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed H. el Zayy and Syria's deputy foreign minister Zakaria Ismael. It was probable that Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban would speak.

With its powerful Arab, African, Asian and Communist blocs, the assembly has struck Israel repeatedly with denunciatory motions.

Woodwinds perform

A "Young Audiences" concert was presented to the students of Sacred Heart School throughout the day Monday, featuring the Kansas City Woodwinds in a program designed to expose children to music and instruments that may not be known to them and to involve the children in the program. The professional ensemble is specially trained in the "Young Audiences" approach to music education, mixing music with dialogue, which, it is hoped, will motivate children to express their feelings while increasing their understanding of the music they hear. The class above is Sister Mariel's first grade class.

Desk clerk beaten, hotel money taken.

A brutal assault and robbery at the Bothwell Hotel, Fourth and Ohio, and two shooting incidents are currently under investigation by police.

The night desk clerk at the Bothwell Hotel, Roy L. Parker, Route 4, was beaten in the elevator, tied and gagged by his assailants and $105.40 taken from the cash drawer around 4 a.m. Monday morning, according to a police report.

Parker told police that a man and woman had come down to the hotel lobby and said that they were going for a walk. The pair returned after a short time and the woman reportedly told Parker that she had left her purse upstairs.

Parker then said that he entered the elevator with the two to take them to the seventh floor, but as soon as the elevator door was closed the couple began to beat him with a bottle and their fists.

Parker said that he was then taken to room 702 of the hotel where another woman, identified only as the man's sister, was waiting.

In the room, Parker was bound hand and foot with strips of sheets and gagged.

Parker said that his assailants had taken the cash drawer key from him in the elevator and, after being bound and gagged, the trio locked him in the room and left.

It was later found that $105.40 was missing from the cash drawer.

Parker managed to work his gag loose after a time and a tenant across the hall, Fred Gilliland, heard Parker's cries for help and, finding the clerk locked in the room, Gilliland called police who opened the room with a master key.

Parker was taken by ambulance to Bothwell Hospital where he was treated for lacerations to the head and released.

Police investigating the incident found a blood-stained bottle in the elevator as well as blood stains in the elevator itself and room 702. It was reported.

Also found in the room was a bus ticket from Kansas City to Sedalia dated just before noon on October 7.

According to the police report, the couple had registered under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gumm, Loreda, Wyo.

A short time later, a pair of pants, a jacket, belt and blood-stained shirt were found in the 300 block of West Sixth.

Police Chief William Miller said that it is assumed that the man changed clothes prior to boarding a bus for Kansas City a short time after the assault.

Police said local authorities along the Rural home destroyed by inferno

Thirty-five years ago H. A. Wilson built a small stone and wood house about three miles northwest of Sedalia. Monday morning Wilson looked at the smoldering remains.

"It was a total loss," he said, gazing at two brick chimneys, the only parts of the structure to escape the fire's destruction. "But we can be thankful no one got hurt."

Wilson's son, Jim Wilson, an employee at Pittsburgh Corning Corp., his wife and five children were eating dinner shortly before 7 p.m. Sunday when one of the children noticed smoke.

"It was coming from the upstairs," Jim Wilson said. "All we could do was get out."

Acting Pettis County Fire Chief Ronnie Ollison listed faulty wiring on the second floor of the structure as the cause of the blaze. Ollison said the fire was out of control when the county fire truck arrived on the scene.

A pumper from the LaMonte Fire Department arrived at the scene about an hour later at the request of the county fire department. LaMonte firefighters battled the blaze while the county truck went back to Sedalia to refill with water. Firefighters remained at the site until about 11:30 p.m., Ollison said.

H. A. Wilson said the family managed to save one or two pieces of furniture, but lost everything else, including clothes.

He said the family is staying with neighbors and will move into a house adjacent to the burned structure "as soon as we get it fixed up."

Wilson said the home was partially insured.

OATS committee election Wednesday

A special meeting to elect a Pettis County committee for the Older American's Transportation System (O.A.T.S.) members will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Municipal Building City Council chambers, it was announced Monday by Carl Franklin, Pettis County O.A.T.S. committee chairman.

Franklin, who strongly stressed that all county members attend the meeting, said membership application blanks will be available for prospective new members at the meeting. Anyone purchasing a membership card prior to the election will be eligible to vote, Franklin said.

Youth changes plea to guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Washington teen-ager on trial in the shooting of Sen. John Stennis today changed his plea to guilty.

U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Waddy accepted the plea from 19-year-old Tyrone I. Marshall as the jury trial entered its second week.

Before accepting the plea, Waddy asked Marshall why he was taking the action.

"The reason why is because they got too much evidence against me," said Marshall. "At the trial last week, all those people got onto the stand and I was listening to what they was saying," he said.

Waddy deferred sentencing. He said that he could sentence Marshall to life imprisonment on the charge of attempting to kill a member of Congress or sentence him under the more lenient Youth Corrections Act.

entire council." He indicated that "in my own personal opinion, I feel that he (Salley) should be given an opportunity to be rehired." The councilman said he will "wait and see" what further develops in the situation before taking formal action.

Hesse noted that under city ordinances, Mayor Coe is authorized to name a replacement for McCubbin. He said no election would be held to fill the vacancy.

McCubbin said that he and the other two city officials who voted with him in the Sept. 4 decision did not vote in the advisory ballot. McCubbin said his decision was based on his opinion that the election was not legal.

The dispute over Salley's firing centered around the contention by Coe, Yancey and McCubbin that Salley was not doing an adequate job in controlling the speeding and loudness of cars at night.

Hesse said that Salley had a good reputation among area law enforcement officers.

Cole Camp robbery probe is continuing

(Democrat-Capital Service)

COLE CAMP — No arrests have been made as yet following the armed robbery of the Cash United Super store here Friday, according to a spokesman for the Benton County Sheriff's Department.

"We've got a couple of leads but we have no suspects in custody at this time," said the spokesman.

The robbery occurred just before the store's 9 p.m. closing time Friday when two young men, armed with pistols, forced one store employee to lie on the floor at gunpoint while another was told to empty the cash register. A third employee was told to go to the store office and remove money from a safe. The robbery netted the thieves approximately $1,000 in cash.

A Highway Patrol investigation of the scene turned up fingerprints of the masked robbers, it was learned, but the spokesman for the sheriff's department said the prints were still being processed by the Highway Patrol and information on the prints was not available as of late Monday morning.

The spokesman said that it was believed that the pair, described as "young, around 20 years of age," had fled east on Route 52 in a late model Chevrolet.

"We're working on something now," said the spokesman, "so we may have something tonight (Monday) or tomorrow."

In other developments Monday, Paxton said that Teague, who was president of Local 2228, has resigned from the department. Acting Pettis County Fire Chief Ronnie Ollison said Teague submitted an oral resignation notice Saturday.

Paxton said Sisemore will replace Teague as president. Sisemore has not worked since he sustained injuries in an automobile accident earlier this year.

Teague was not available for comment Monday.

Children give young shoplifter advice

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago, just before summer vacation, you printed a letter from an angry mother. Her son had taken a 39 cent pen from a drugstore. She was furious because the store manager had lectured the boy harshly, "treated him like a criminal," she said, and made the child cry. The mother was afraid the traumatic emotional experience might cause permanent psychic damage.

I am a sixth grade teacher and my pupils are about the same age as the boy who did the shoplifting. I read that column to my class and made no comment. I merely asked them to write their opinions of the incident in essay form. The results were fascinating. It proved they were really thinking. I would like to share their essays with you. Here they are — all 27 of them! — Mrs. Adele T. Burnett, Berkeley, Calif.

Dear Mrs. B.: How I wish I could print each and every letter in full, but space limitations make it impossible. I'm printing some excerpts, however, with my warm thanks to all. — Ann Landers will not get psychic damage from one lecture. You are an overly cautious mother and a worry wart. — Harry R.

Dear Boy's Mother: Your son

The mother should not blame the store manager because her son got nervous and shivered and shook and cried. The boy was at fault. He had no business stealing the pen in the first place. — Julie M.

The mother of the boy who stole should be glad somebody bawled him out. She should have done more than that when she got him home, like taken away his privileges and his bike, and no TV for four weeks. — Earl W.

A mother who is too soft on a child who steals little things can be paving the way for him to become a big robber later on and he might spend the rest of his life in prison. — Stephanie P.

Yelling does no good. The boy should have been questioned and asked why he didn't ask his mother for the money so he could buy a pen if he wanted one. He should have been told that if he didn't learn to leave things alone that didn't belong to him, in later life his career would be ruined. I think the store manager should forgive him now that everything is over with the let him come in the store again and prove he can be honest. — Fee O.

Your son got off too easy. You, as the mother, should have given him six lashes across the hands. Three on each one. — Johnny M.

That mother should be smart enough to know that every person who steals a car probably started out stealing some little thing, like a 39 cent pen. — Tina C.

The store manager was right. If the boy got away with no punishment at all, he might tell his friends and it could start up a wave of stealing all over town. About the psychic damage, unless a child is overprotected he probably wouldn't get it. — Tom G.

Record setter

Don Johnston, a newsman for a radio station in Portland, Ore., won a merry-go-round marathon Friday when his only remaining opponent, Carol Stidham, gave up the race after staying on the merry-go-round for 176 hours. Johnston, congratulated by Miss Stidham, planned to stay on a few more hours. This marathon performance set a world record. (UPI)

St. Louis newspaper readers receive Globe

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis area newspaper readers received their morning Globe-Democrat today for the first time since Teamsters Union Local 610 walked off the job at the Globe and St. Louis Post-Dispatch 48 days ago.

Regular readers of the Globe noticed that the newspaper was more condensed than normal, with some features shortened or omitted entirely. The Globe said the move was a temporary measure to meet the shortage of newsprint that has forced some newspapers to take even more drastic steps.

Both the Globe and the Post, which began publication with its Sunday paper, included tightly written summaries of local and national news in their first papers. The Sunday Post did not include the weekly magazine supplements because there was no time to prepare them.

The teamsters ended their strike Thursday night by voting almost unanimously to approve a new three-year contract with the city's two daily newspapers.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Patient has ulcerative colitis

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have chronic ulcerative colitis for which I consult my doctor at regular intervals — without much improvement. I admit.

A health-minded friend, a nurse, has recommended a number of items she thinks would help me, such as vitamin E, lecithin, etc. She also says "no white flour" while the doctor says "no whole wheat."

Would you comment on the value, if any, of vitamin E and lecithin in particular, as well as any general suggestions for the diet of a patient with ulcerative colitis. Are protein supplements of any value?

Dear Reader — For the benefit of our other readers, your problem of ulcerative colitis is a disease that affects the colon primarily. It causes attacks of severe diarrhea, similar to dysentery. As such, it causes a loss of fluid and important salts from the body. In severe cases it can result in hemorrhage from the bowel.

Ulcerative colitis actually affects much more of the intestinal tract. The colon normally does not enter into digestion other than in its role of reabsorption of water from food residue. All of the absorption of nutrients, vitamins, and minerals occurs in the small intestine. Yet these digestive functions are also often impaired in patients with ulcerative colitis. The decreased absorption of vitamin K often leads to an increased tendency to bleeding.

The involvement of the small intestine often destroys the enzymes there that are necessary to absorb milk sugar, lactose. As a result many patients with ulcerative colitis cannot digest milk or milk products.

To answer your specific questions, vitamin E is not likely to help you much. There is no reliable evidence of it having helped any ulcerative colitis patients. Lecithin is not absorbed from anyone's intestine, even in normal people. Lecithin is a combination of choline and a fatty acid containing phosphorus. The enzymes normally present in the intestine break it apart into choline and its fatty acid or it can't be absorbed.

The lecithin in the body is formed from food substances in the liver. The choline is important, but any diet that contains sufficient protein found in animal proteins provides the materials the body uses to manufacture choline, which it can do. So, I am not optimistic that either of these measures will be helpful to you.

Because ulcerative colitis patients often lose protein during their attacks, I do recommend a high protein intake. You can either enjoy this in the form of protein foods (meat, poultry, fish) and have the added advantage and diet satisfaction of bulk, or you can take protein powder supplements.

Your doctor must think it possible that you don't tolerate gluten and that this may be a factor in your problem. Whole wheat bread contains more gluten than white bread, but if gluten is a problem I would wonder about your eating any breads or cereals (except corn or rice) or any foods that contain them.

What you need to do about vitamin, mineral and protein supplements depends a lot on how much trouble you are having with absorption. That varies a lot with different patients.

The Pony Expressmen eight-time champions

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Pony Expressmen of St. Joseph became the first eight-time chorus champions in the history of the Central States District over the weekend at the district's annual barbershop harmony competition, while the Formalities of Iowa City, Iowa earned the district's 1973 quartet title.

The two-day convention in Kansas City's Music Hall drew some 1,500 barbershoppers and their families from SPEBSQSA chapters in seven states—Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and South Dakota.

The acronym stands for the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.

The 58-member Pony Expressmen chorus, directed by Byron Myers, sang "If You Were the Only Girl in the World" and "It All Belongs To Me" in earning its third straight CSD crown and eighth since 1960. The St. Joseph group will represent the district next July 8-14 at the annual SPEBSQSA international competition in Kansas City.

The Pony Expressmen placed fifth in the 1972 international contest at Atlanta and were sixth in the 1973 Society competition at Portland, Ore.

The Chordbusters chorus of Davenport, Iowa was the runner-up in Saturday night's finals and the Harmony Hawks of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, seventh CSD champs, were third.

Fourth was the Gateway Chorus of the St. Louis Suburban Chapter and Kansas City's Heart of America chorus was fifth. Rounding out the top 10 were choruses representing Mason City, Iowa; Iowa City, Iowa; Denver, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Des Moines, Iowa.

Second in the quartet competition were the Moring Times of Kansas City. Rounding out the top five were the Certain Ds of Cedar Rapids, the 4th Generation of Denver and the Rural Route 4 of Harrisonville, Mo.

FOOD & FIBER NEWS

University of Missouri Extension Centers
Henry - Johnson - Lafayette - Pettis

D.H.I.

During the month of August Chancy and Lena Housworth supervised the testing of 807 cows in 15 herds.

The five highest herds for the month were Paul and Jessie Birdsong, Richard Lenz, Robert Longan, Everett Billings and Roland Oelrichs. The average production per cow ranged from 997 pounds of milk to 1,297 pounds. The number of cows in the herd ranged from 41 to 103.

The 11 highest producing cows ranged from 2,210 pounds of milk to 2,520 pounds. The following dairies had these number of cows: Richard Lenz, 4; Clyde Rehmer, 1; Robert French, 2; Billings, 1; Longan Dairy, 1; Larry McColester, 1 and Cloyd Merk, 1.

Roland Oelrich had a 10-year-old cow to go over the 100,000 pound mark for milk during her lifetime. There were 13 cows in the association that produced over 550 pounds of butterfat during the last 305 day lactation.

Social Security

Several questions have been raised about social security tax rates and regulations affecting farmers for 1973 and 1974.

An employer is required to make deposits of taxes collected (or withheld) from employees. They are to be made with any commercial bank authorized to receive federal tax deposits or with a federal reserve bank.

Forms for reporting social security deposits can be obtained from the Internal Revenue Service Center, Federal Building, Kansas City, Mo. For agricultural labor, ask for Forms 943, 943PR and Form 511. If you are a new employer, you need to file an application with IRS for an identification number. Thus, you must use your forms—that is, only those with your identification number. For example, if you use another taxpayer's deposit forms, he (not you) will receive credit for your payment.

In 1973 self-employed farmers pay a social security tax of 8 per cent—also on a maximum of $10,800 income or a maximum tax of $864, (this goes up to $960 or more in 1974).

Much involved

Area farmers have much at stake while they produce meat, milk and grain crops says John Morehead, extension farm management specialist.

Records analyzed on 13 area farms employing 37 works shows it takes $138,850 average capital investment of one worker. Each of these workers in 1972 produced agricultural products worth over $50,000 at a cost of over $34,000.

Just as in other businesses, the involvement of added capital places some added risk on the proprietor. Capital requirements in farming have been increasing at an increasing rate said Morehead.

In 1940 USDA figures show production of farm output was accomplished with 15 per cent of the inputs from land, 55 per cent from labor and only 30 per cent from inputs of capital.

On these 13 area farms, capital inputs were 76 per cent of the total with labor and land input equally divided.

Today's extreme price variations for our farm output (mostly livestock sales) places a high risk on the capital expansion involved on many farms.

Budgeting capital additions should be a high priority management task for improvement of incomes.

Steer profits

When cattle are sold at 1,050 pounds, buying a 450-pound steer calf for $1 less per hundredweight lowers the breakeven slaughter price by 43 cents. For a 600-pound yearling sold at 1100 lbs., the breakeven price is lowered 54 cents on the dollar.

If you are borrowing the money and paying 9 per cent interest, increase these estimates by 50 cents on calves and 60 cents for yearlings.

Feed costs are 70-75 per cent of total production costs. With home raised feed, you don't have marketing costs which, in most instances, makes your feed cheaper.

Individuals who purchase corn have more risk because the purchase price is a cash cost.

Feed costs increase $1 per hundredweight for each 10-cent rise in the value of corn per bushel. You can lower production costs $2 to $3 per hundredweight by charging corn at $2 per bushel rather than $2.50.

Interest rates of 8 to 10 per cent on borrowed money add about $2 per hundredweight to the breakeven slaughter price.

Tax tip

If farm profits run good this year, you might save on farm taxes by plowing some money back into a soil conservation project. You can deduct soil and water conservation expenses up to 25 per cent of your farm's gross income.

This would be an excellent time to start a soil conservation plan. You would save tax dollars and help save the soil for the future.

Some deductible conservation expenses include terraces, waterways, outlets, earthen dams, ponds, diversion channels, drainage ditches, leveling and grading, restoration of fertility and the eradication of brush.

For more information see the "Farmers' Tax Guide," available at University of Missouri Extension Centers.

Furnace filters

If you do not know the condition of your furnace filter, examine it today and avoid problems when heating season arrives. Clean filters can add to your comfort by reducing dust particles in the air.

A clogged filter can prevent proper operation of furnaces. It may restrict the air flow to such an extent that it may prevent proper heating of the house. Restricted air flow may also cause an overheated furnace, especially if the high temperature limit control should fail to operate.

If you don't know the size filter to purchase, remove the old one and examine it. The size should be marked on it. Take note of its length, width and thickness. The new filter should match the size of the one you removed.

Use the hose attachment of a vacuum cleaner to remove any accumulation of lint and dust in the blower section of the furnace while the filter is removed.

While examining the furnace, examine the belt on the blower. If it is cracked or shows signs of wear, replace it. Many fans and fan motors should be oiled about once or twice a year. If you find oil holes on either, add enough oil to fill the cup or opening without overflowing. A lightweight automobile engine oil should be satisfactory unless something else is specified in your instruction manual.

Growth stimulants

There are substitute products still approved by the Food and Drug Administration that give improved performance of feedlot cattle similar to that obtained with stilbestrol.

Numberous tests with Synovex and Ralgru implants for steers have shown these materials to increase rate and efficiency of gain of cattle fed growing and finishing rations by 8 to 14 and 6 to 10 per cent, respectively.

Tests indicate that implants stimulate gains for about 100 days. Thus reimplanting would be needed in long feeding periods.

Don't overlook MGA as a feed additive to increase the performance of feedlot heifers. It has often been superior to

Drug enforcement expansion noted

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis office of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration is expected to be operating at full capacity within a month.

Duane Leiter, acting director of the agency, said over the weekend that eight agents will be added within 30 days, bringing the staff to 12 men.

The DEA is the successor to the Drug Abuse Law Enforcement Agency, which was disbanded following public clamor over mistaken drug raids in Collinsville, Edwardsville and East St. Louis, Ill.

Twelve Dale agents were indicted by a federal grand jury at Alton, Ill., in August on charges of violating the constitutional rights of 11 persons during no-knock raids.

DES in feedlot trials with heifers.

It is easy to show a profit by use of these additives at present feed costs. It takes a feed cost of $175 to put 500 pounds of gain on a steer. A reduction of 8 per cent in feed costs amounts to $14 a steer. Two implants of Synovex or Ralgru would cost only $1.50 to $2 a steer plus labor of application.

Milo vs. corn

If you plan to buy grain sorghum to feed cattle, watch out for varieties that have less feed value. Bird-resistant varieties have been inferior to corn and to most other grain sorghum varieties for cattle in experimental comparisons. Some varieties or types of grain sorghums have been equal to or slightly less in feed value than corn for cattle. The starch in milo is considered to be less digestible than that in corn in most instances. Thus, processing methods such as heat treatment and high moisture storage often give a greater improvement with grain sorghum than with corn. Milo must be ground or rolled, whereas shelled corn gives better results when left whole in rations with low levels of roughage.

New Zealand potential new market for turkeys

By DON KENDALL

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — New Zealand, a major source of imported beef for American consumers, is developing a taste for Kentucky fried chicken and prepared turkey items familiar to U.S. supermarket shoppers.

The Agriculture Department says New Zealanders seem to have taken well to such products as cooked turkey rolls, hickory-smoked breast meat and turkey salami. The result could be a new market for U.S. turkey growers.

New Zealand, one of the world's largest exporters of dairy products, wool, lamb and mutton, ranks second only to Australia as a provider of foreign beef to the United States.

But a report today by the Foreign Agricultural Service in USDA illustrates what has been happening in many parts of the world: Consumers everywhere are looking for alternate sources of meat protein and to many, this means poultry.

The report was written by Roland E. Anderson Jr., who recently returned to USDA here after three years as agricultural attaché in New Zealand.

Although Anderson says the potential market for U.S. poultry products does not appear huge, the situation in New Zealand does represent that American food processors and farmers are facing in the world trade arena.

For example, Anderson told a reporter, New Zealand is having to turn gradually from Britain as its primary market for butter and other dairy products because of the United Kingdom's entry into the European Common Market.

Thus, Anderson said, if new markets for dairy products cannot be found in the United States, Japan or among some of the developing nations, New Zealand farmers will be forced into other kinds of production.

The emergency of a broiler industry—and the developing taste for American-style turkey—can help provide the necessary change by enabling New Zealand farmers to switch perhaps from milking cows to growing more crops such as corn and soybeans to supply the chicken flocks.

Eventually, that could have some impact on beef exports, too, since most of the low-grade beef from New Zealand comes from surplus dairy cattle.

But New Zealand, about the size of Colorado and with a population of approximately three million, is a long way from being a major grain or soybean producer and has not developed the sophisticated techniques of livestock feeding common in the United States.

One big reason is that New Zealand traditionally has been a grassland economy, using its rich pastures to produce a wealth of wool, meat and milk rather than plowing the land for feed grain.

The entry of large-scale broiler chicken production, however, is bringing some changes. Anderson's report says corn output has gone up 133 per cent in the past five years to about 4.7 million bushels from 40,000 acres. A further increase of about 20 per cent is expected this year.

Soybeans are a token crop but show some promise, perhaps increasing from about 1,000 acres in all of New Zealand last year to an estimated 6,000 to 7,000 acres within the next five years. Meantime, about 1,200 tons of U.S. soybeans were imported this year to help encourage livestock and poultry growers to use more protein in their feeds.

Franchises for fried chicken have sprung up in New Zealand, which is helping boost poultry consumption. Last year per capita poultry consumption was 15.7 pounds, up two-thirds from five years earlier.

Americans, by comparison ate 42.9 pounds of chicken and 9.1 of turkey last year on a per capita basis.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department will issue Friday, Oct. 12, a report showing new production estimates for major crops including corn, soybeans and wheat.

Last month, the Crop Reporting Board estimated a record corn crop this year of almost 5.77 billion bushels, up two per cent from the August forecast. Wheat was put at more than 1.7 billion bushels, a one per cent gain from August, and soybeans were estimated at nearly 1.6 billion bushels, up four per cent from August indications.

Four persons killed on Montana dude ranch

OVANDO, Mont. (AP) — Four persons died Sunday in a bizarre shooting incident on a dude ranch near this western Montana community.

Police launched a search for a former mental patient from Decatur, Ill., who officers said was seen leaving the ranch carrying rifles and shotguns.

Powell County Sheriff David J. Collings said a first-degree murder warrant has been issued for a man who had worked at the Whitetail Ranch under the alias of Tex McCord. Collings said the man's true name apparently was Roger Caryl.

Collings said eyewitnesses to the shootings of two of the victims reported that a man walked into the main building of the Whitetail Ranch and said "Here's hello from Tex!" before shooting a woman and an Escondido, Calif., man who had recently bought the ranch.

Collings said a check of the ranch property yielded the bodies of a man and his son who had been Caryl's fellow workers during his brief tenure at the ranch.

Found fatally wounded from shotgun blasts in the main ranchhouse were John Ross Miller, 24, formerly of California, and Mrs. Ruby Judd, 62.

Collings said an automobile Caryl drove from the scene was found wrecked on a nearby road.

Collings said Miller's wife and another person at the ranchhouse when the shootings occurred said the slayer was heavily armed when he left the premises.

The surviving workers at the ranch packed up and left before sundown, Collings said.

Collings described the 18-year-old Caryl as weighing about 170 pounds and wearing a full beard.

The sheriff said Caryl was an escapee from a mental institution in Decatur.

Kansas City area man held for questioning

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A man from the Kansas City area was being held for questioning here in connection with the kidnapping and rape of an Olathe, Kan., woman.

The victim, 22, told authorities she picked up a hitchhiker Thursday in the Kansas City suburb of Shawnee, Kan., and he forced her to drive to an isolated area near Perry Reservoir, northeast of here.

The woman said she was raped several times, beaten and slashed with a knife. Her assailant reportedly drove off in her car and the woman managed to flag down help after crawling about 100 yards to a county road.

She was in fair condition at a Topeka hospital.

Fred Howard, director of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation, said the man being held was stopped by Wichita police early Sunday driving the woman's car. He told authorities he borrowed the car from a friend.

Union Pacific to buy new rail cars

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—President John C. Kenefick says the Union Pacific Railroad will spend more than $100 million for new equipment in 1974.

The program calls for acquisition of 3,030 freight cars and 100 locomotives. The car order includes 1,525 boxcars of various sizes, 400 open-top hopper cars, 105 flatcars and 1,000 high capacity hopper cars to strengthen the UP's grain car fleet.

Kenefick said this will be the second successive year equipment expenditures have topped $100 million and the second year the railroad has increased its hopper car fleet by 1,000 units.

Steelers hold off San Diego, 38-21

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
That was the longest second half I've ever been in. Pittsburgh Steelers' Coach Chuck Noll said.

Harland Sware of the San Diego Chargers could've said the same thing...about Sunday's first half.

In those first 30 minutes of their National Football League game, the Steelers rolled up 38 points while holding San Diego scoreless.

So Noll decided to give his first-stringers a rest and go with substitutes. It didn't really come close to costing the game, but it threw a scare into the Steelers.

They kept their record untainted with their 38-21 victory. Two other teams remained perfect as well, the Los Angeles Rams riding John Hadl's pinpoint passing to a 31-26 triumph over the Houston Oilers and the Minnesota Vikings jumping on a pair of early Detroit mistakes and turning them into touchdowns en route to a 23-9 victory over the Lions. The only other unbeaten team, the Dallas Cowboys, face the Redskins in Washington tonight.

In other NFL action Sunday, New Orleans surprised Chicago 21-16, Miami mangled the New York Jets 31-3, Green Bay edged the New York Giants 16-14, Cleveland dumped Cincinnati 17-10, New England beat Baltimore 24-16, Buffalo squeezed past Philadelphia 27-26, San Francisco 49ers topped Atlanta 13-9, Oakland defeated St. Louis 17-10 and Kansas City trimmed Denver 16-14.

In the Pittsburgh-San Diego game, Terry Bradshaw and Terry Hanratty each threw touchdown passes to Ron Shanklin. Bradshaw first hit Shanklin on a 12-yard TD pass and later scored himself from one yard out. After a Roy Gerela field goal, safety Mike Wagner set up another touchdown, returning an interception 23 yards to the Chargers' nine. Steve Davis scored from the one foot plays later. Hanratty then replaced Bradshaw and hit Shanklin with a 37-yard pass.

The Chargers scored three touchdowns on Dan Fouts' 13-yard pass to Jerry LeVias and short runs by Clint Jones and Robert Holmes in the fourth period.

Rams 31, Oilers 26
John Hadl, once known as a mad bomber in San Diego but now the most accurate passer in the NFL, was responsible for most of the Rams' points. He completed scoring passes of 15 and 69 yards to Harold Jackson and 38 yards to Jack Snow.

The Oilers got four field goals from Skip Butler but didn't make it close until the fourth quarter, when they got touchdowns on a four-yard Bob Gresham run and a 14-yard scamper with a blocked punt by Larry Eaglin. It was Houston's fourth straight loss this year and 15th in a row going back to last season.

Vikings 23, Lions 9
Detroit coughed up the ball twice in the first five minutes and Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton turned them into touchdowns passes of 12 and eight yards to Ed Marinaro.

Saints 21, Bears 16
"We won, but we could have scored a lot more," said Archie Manning. "I felt the score should have been much, much bigger," said John North. It sounded strange, considering Manning is quarterback and North is coach of New Orleans, a team which had not only been losing all season so far but had been losing badly before beating Chicago.

Dolphins 31, Jets 3
Miami, which usually sticks to the ground, looked hungrily at the Jets' secondary, then

Bob Griese chewed it to pieces with three touchdown passes—two to Paul Warfield covering three and 40 yards and a 12-yarder to Marlin Briscoe. Mercury Morris and Larry Csonka combined for 121 yards with Morris scoring on a three-yard plunge.

Packers 16, Giants 14
With five seconds remaining in the game, Chester Marcol calmly booted a 32-yard field goal to beat the Giants. New York got a pair of Norm Snead touchdowns passes.

Browns 17, Bengals 10
"It's great to get six points in close instead of a field goal," said Cleveland's Leroy Kelly. Kelly got 12, scoring twice on runs of three and seven yards to help beat the Bengals.

Patriots 24, Colts 16
"Now I can go home and enjoy my Sunday dinner for a change," Randy Vataha said after his touchdown—a 46-yard run following a teammate's fumble—locked up the Patriots' first victory of 1973.

Bills 27, Eagles 26
Buffalo marched from its own 28-yard line to Philadelphia's 40. Less than four minutes remained. Coming up was fourth and inches. And John Leypoldt kicked a 47-yard field goal to put the Bills ahead 27-26.

49ers 13, Falcons 9
"We had to win to stay in contention," said San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan after the 49ers beat Atlanta to stay with in striking distance of the NFC West-leading Rams.

Oakland rolls behind Stabler

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Once you get the first one things are okay," quarterback Ken Stabler conceded, "but we should have scored four times."

The Oakland Raiders instead settled Sunday for two touchdowns, their first on offense in four games, while scuttling the St. Louis Cardinals, 17-10 in the National Football League.

And despite the effort, including erasure of a 7-3 St. Louis lead at halftime, Raiders Coach John Madden said he was largely unimpressed.

"One game doesn't mean anything," insisted Madden, whose team rolled up 446 yards but wasted early opportunities.

"We'd been struggling until today," Madden added dourly. "When we win we're happy, but it doesn't necessarily take us over some hump."

Before winning, error-prone Oakland extended its offensive drought to 14 quarters ahead of scoring drives consuming 86 and 78 yards in the second half.

Usually reliable Marv Hubbard fumbled after the Raiders paraded to the St. Louis nine following the Cardinals' opening touchdown.

And the composed Stabler, after completing nine passes in a row, was intercepted in the end zone from the St. Louis 11 in the first half's final minute.

Ageless George Blanda's 297th career field goal was all the Raiders managed until Stabler unleashed a strong running attack.

But Pete Banaszak swept the left side for seven and 18 yards and Charlie Smith's two-yard plunge culminated a march opening the third quarter for a 10-7 Oakland lead.

St. Louis later tied on Jim Bakken's 12-yard field goal, but Clarence Davis roared 23 yards and Hubbard 12 before the latter blasted a yard to break the deadlock.

"We wanted to control the ball," Madden said in reference to bruising Oakland thrusts producing 247 yards to thrust Stabler's 207-yard passing.

While the 27-year-old Stabler was completing 19 of his 31 passes a fierce Raiders charge reduced the Cardinals' Jim Hart to 12 for 27.

Hart opened the scoring by lobbing a 16-yard pass to Jackie Smith for the St. Louis touchdown but afterward was tackled five times for losses by Oakland linemen.

Oakland's victory boosted the defending American Conference West champion's record to 2-2 and left the Cards with the same mark in the National Conference East.

"We lost to a strong, physical team," acknowledged Cardinals Coach Don Coryell. "Our defense didn't give up too many points, but we just had no big plays on offense."

CMC harriers clash Tuesday

Defending champion Jefferson City is a heavy favorite to retain its Central Missouri Conference cross country title Tuesday, when the four teams meet for the annual event at Jefferson City.

For Coach Larry York, a Jays win would bring him his third straight league championship. He coached the 1971 Smith-Cotton Tigers to the CMC title. His first year at Jefferson City in 1972 was a profitable one, when again he won the title.

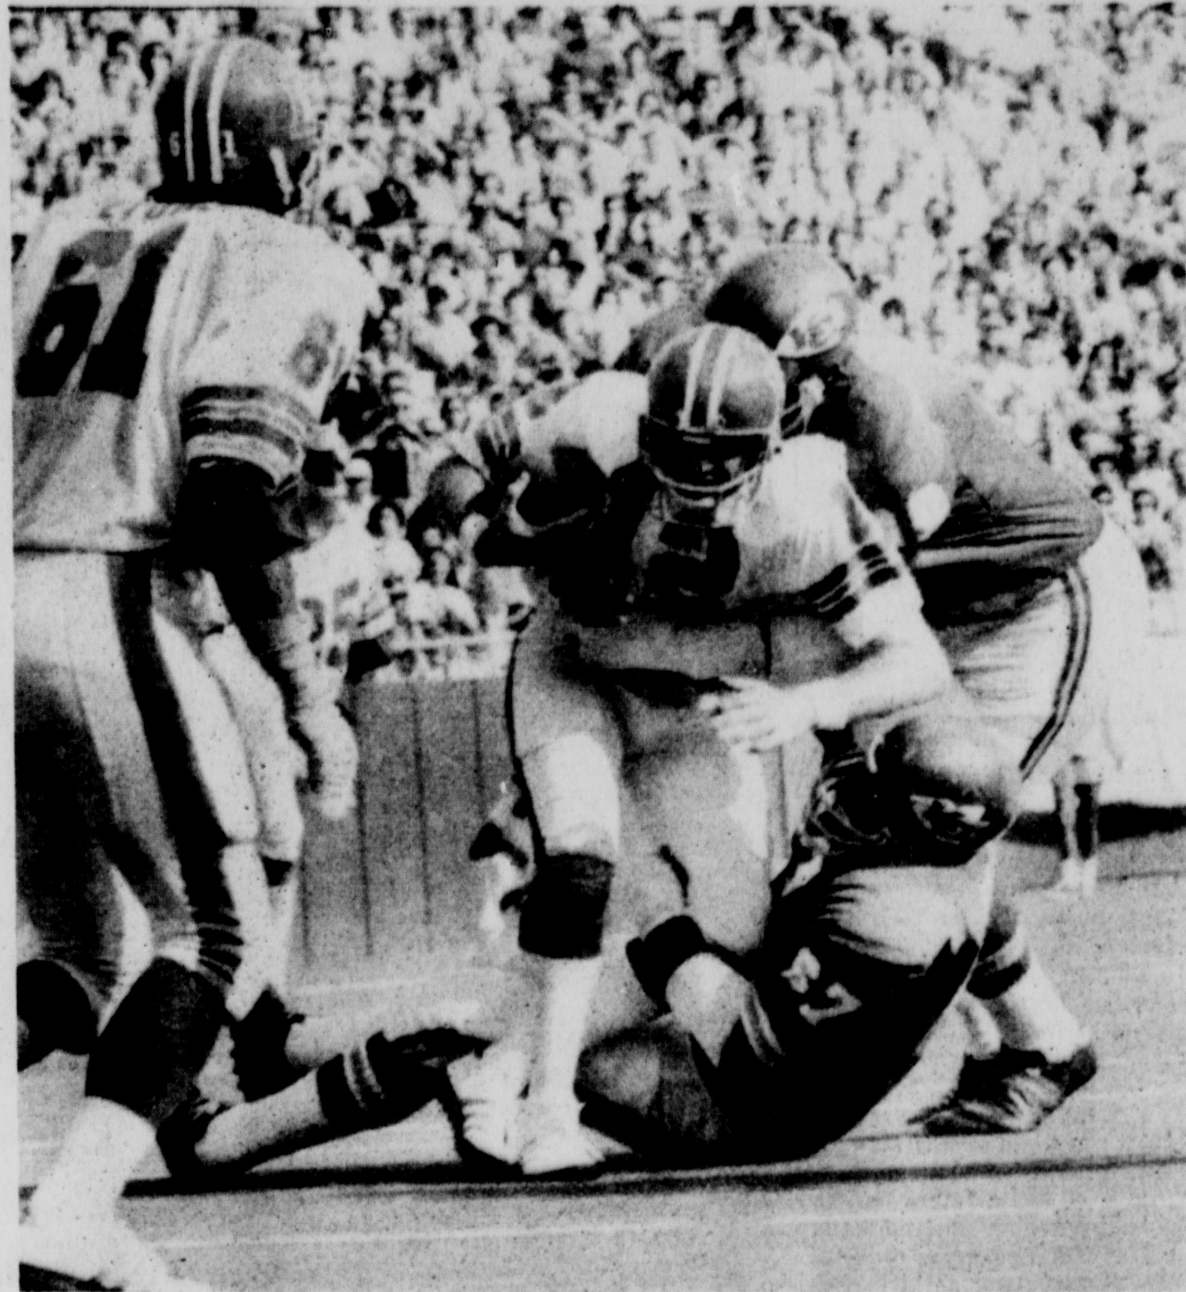

Favorites for individual honors include S-C's Steve Fischer, Steve Welch of Hannibal and Jefferson City's David Cooper.

Early race casualties

David Pearson (21) of Spartanburg, S.C., drives his Mercury into the Chevrolet of Charlie Goltzback (28) of Georgetown, Ind., as Cale Yarborough (11) of Timmonsville, S.C., keeps low to avoid the collision. The accident happened early in Sunday's National 500 at Charlotte, N.C. between the third and fourth turns. Both drivers had to retire to the pits, while Yarborough went on to win the event. (UPI)

Sealing the victory

Denver's Charlie Johnson (12) is dropped for a one-yard loss on his 18 yard line by Kansas City Chiefs' George Seals (67) and Wilbur Young (99) in the second half of Sunday's AFC

Western Division match-up in Kansas City. The Chiefs won the game on a fourth-quarter field goal by Jan Stenerud. (UPI)

Stenerud, Wilson boot Kansas City past Broncos

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs had too many feet for the Denver Broncos Sunday.

Jan Stenerud kicked a 39-yard field goal with six minutes, 39 seconds left, giving the Chiefs a 16-14 American Football Conference victory over the Broncos.

Jerrel Wilson, the punter, averaged 50.8 yards a kick and got off key 68 and 62-yarders that probably had as much to do with the Chiefs' triumph as Stenerud's foot.

Stenerud's game-winning boot was his third in as many tries, and there's a reason for his perfect performance.

After Jan had trouble with his kicks this season, Chiefs Coach Hank Stram looked at films of four or five years ago and found the answer.

"We discovered that Jan was kicking four yards deep instead of the usual three," Stram explained. "Jan's right foot was four yards from the ball at the start of his approach. We moved him up a yard during the week in practice."

The change back to his old way of doing things caused Stenerud trouble.

"I felt uncomfortable all week," said Stenerud. "I had to keep telling myself I have to shorten my approach."

Wilson saw to it that Denver had poor field position with his 68-yard kick in the third quarter when the Chiefs led 13-7 and again with his 62-yarder with only 1:37 remaining.

"Sometimes you take the kicking game for granted, especially when you win," Stram said. "Jerry Wilson did a super job. He had some very key ones."

Stenerud kicked 38 and 40-yard three-pointers in the first half that left the Chiefs only a point behind 7-6 at the intermission. Kansas City took the second half kickoff and marched 78 yards on 12 plays, the payoff Len Dawson's 20-yard pass to Otis Taylor, who took the ball out of Denver safety Charles Greer's hands at the goal.

Denver almost beat the Chiefs, who retained their one-game lead in the AFC's Western Division, with big plays. Floyd Little took a short pass from Charlie Johnson in the second quarter and fled to the goal, pausing twice to break a tackle and leap over a defender. The play covered 50 yards.

Shortly before Stenerud's winning field goal, Joe Dawkins capped a penalty-aided 95-yard drive by streaking 72 yards to the pay window. The blows by Little and Dawkins enabled Denver to lead each time.

"We're getting close," said Denver Coach John Ralston, whose team is 1-3. "We're progressing but we haven't quite kicked the habit. We need one big one. And today would have been it. Once we get over to the winning side, no one will stop us."

Evel Knievel hospitalized

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) — Evel Knievel, motorcycle stunt rider, was hospitalized here Sunday after he fell during a high-speed jump and slid on his back along a ramp.

Hospital officials said Knievel suffered back injuries, a fractured bone in his left hand and possible kidney damage. He was reported in satisfactory condition.

Officials at Kaukauna Speedway said Knievel and his motorcycle had cleared 10 cars and three trucks when the cycle tipped backwards after landing. They estimated that Knievel slid 100 feet before coming to a halt.

U.S. Grand Prix to Peterson

Yarborough wins National 500

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

Ronnie Peterson will take $53,900 in American dollars back to Sweden and Cale Yarborough will keep $41,300 of them at home after a heavy weekend of auto racing.

Peterson, a 29-year-old charger from Orebro, Sweden, beat Britisher James Hunt, a rookie, by less than half a second to win the $275,000 U.S. Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, N.Y., Sunday.

Farther south, at Charlotte, N.C., Yarborough nipped old pro Richard Petty by about two seconds to win the National 500 for Grand National stock cars.

Peterson's jackpot included a first place check for $50,000 and $3,900 for setting a record qualifying lap of 121.990 miles per hour to win the pole position.

Yarborough's payday included $17,000 from the $166,693 purse and a whopping $24,000 for leading 243 of the race's 400 laps.

There were other big winners—and some losers—as the auto racing season began winding down in earnest.

Gary Bettenhausen took home $15,887 after winning a 200-mile race for United States Auto Club championship cars at College Station, Tex., while second-place finisher Johnny Ruthford added some qualifying and lap money to his share of the purse and wound up with $19,327.

Laurin may run both his entries

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat makes his debut on the turf in the $100,000 added Man o' War Stakes today at Belmont Park.

Trainer Lucien Laurin said there is a 90 per cent chance that both the Triple Crown winner and stablemate Riva Ridge will start in the 1 1/2-mile race. Laurin said, however, that Riva Ridge would be scratched if the turf is soft.

Three stroke win for Johnny Miller

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller has won the Lancome Invitational Golf Tournament after carding a three-under-par 69 Sunday over the Nom la Breteche golf course.

Miller's 277 total was three ahead of Valentin Barrios of Spain. Gary Player of South Africa and Charles Coody of the United States finished in a tie for third.

Four homers sink O's 6-3

A's use power to even series

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics, having proved the Baltimore Orioles aren't invincible in American League playoff competition, return home today with confidence they can win the current best-of-five series.

"I think we have the advantage now," Oakland manager Dick Williams said after a home run barrage gave the A's a 6-3 victory Sunday and evened the series at one game apiece. "We're in pretty good shape."

"We're going back to our own park, and we have two 20-game winners to throw at them."

Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles, having suffered his first playoff defeat after 10 consecutive victories, found it hard to fathom that being 1-1 was a disadvantage.

"Unless the second game means more than the first one," he said, "we're still even. We have to win two out of three now, and so do they."

Weaver, who didn't even have to use one of his four 20-game winners while beating the A's in the 1971 playoffs, can't match Oakland in that regard for the next two games, at least.

Left-hander Ken Holtzman was to start for Oakland in today's game, 3:30 p.m. EDT, against Baltimore lefty Mike Cuellar, an 18-game winner during the regular season.

Lefty Vida Blue, who was knocked from the mound in the first inning of Saturday's opener, has been named by Williams to start game No. 4.

Weaver said he would stick with his original plans to pitch young Doyle Alexander in the fourth game. While Alexander won just 12 during the regular season, one of those was a one-run, complete game victory over the A's.

The Orioles out-homered the A's 18-16 during regular season series, won by Oakland 7-5, but five of those hit by the A's came off Dave McNally, who was rapped for four more on Sunday.

Third baseman Sal Bando slammed two drives into the left field bleachers, after being robbed on his previous at bat when Al Bumbry reached high above the fence to pull down an apparent homer.

Solo homers also were hit by Bert Campaneris and Joe Rudi, as the A's scored all but one of their runs on round-trippers.

Campaneris, who rammed into center fielder Angel Mangual for a miscue which could have proved costly, also had two singles, two stolen bases, batted in two runs and scored twice.

Campaneris, with just four regular season homers, connected on the second pitch from McNally. Rudi and Bando hit back-to-back homers leading off the sixth, and Bando socked another in the eighth after an infield hit by Campaneris.

Oakland starter Jim "Catfish" Hunter was touched for a run in the opening inning, and then retired 14 consecutive batters before issuing a fifth inning walk.

Hunter, who beat the Orioles three times without a loss during the 1973 season, allowed a tainted run in the sixth when Campaneris failed to hear Mangual call for a high fly in short center and it went for a run-scoring double after they collided.

After the second out, Hunter issued an intentional walk to Brooks Robinson and then retired Bobby Grich on a fly ball.

Rollie Fingers relieved Hunter in the eighth following singles by Tommy Davis and Williams. Fingers yielded a run-scoring single by Robinson, but after walking Grich to load the bases, he got pinch hitter Don Baylor on a grounder to Campaneris.

Playoff moves to New York

Matlack cools Cincinnati

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds rolled to 17 more regular-season victories than the New York Mets, but their National League playoff season was tied at one win apiece as it switched to Shea Stadium here today.

The Mets, who underwhelmed the East Division with an 82-79 record, squared the best-of-five series Sunday at Cincinnati with a 5-0 triumph. The remaining games will be played here.

Lefty Jon Matlack, a 19-year-old minor leaguer when the Miracle Mets won the World Series in 1969, fired a masterful two-hitter in the Mets' win Sunday.

The day before Mets hurler Tom Seaver set a NL playoff record with 13 strikeouts but still lost on a ninth-inning homer by Johnny Bench.

"Matlack pitched a better game than Seaver did," acknowledged Pete Rose, the sparkplug of Cincinnati's Big Red Machine.

Today the Reds send Ross Grimsley, 13-10, against another Mets lefty, Jerry Koosman, 14-15.

"I sat here yesterday and said I don't expect Matlack to pitch as well as Seaver," Rose declared from his locker stool.

"Now doggone," he said with a grimace. "I sure don't expect Koosman to throw as good as Matlack."

With the exception of Sunday's ninth inning when the Mets scored four runs on a walk and five singles, Reds' pitching has also been outstanding.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead Sunday when Rusty Staub belted a solo homer to right in the fourth inning off losing pitcher Don Gullett.

It was the only run off Gullett, who worked five innings and allowed two hits before bowing to a pinch hitter in the fifth.

The Mets' four-run burst in the last inning came off relievers Tom Hall and Pedro Borbon. Jerry Grote's bases-loaded single drove in two of the runs.

Meanwhile, Matlack allowed only two Reds to reach second base the entire game, and he notched nine strikeouts and just three walks.

Hawkins may be out rest of year

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles lost more than a football game in Buffalo.

Flanker Ben Hawkins fractured his left leg in the Eagles' 27-26 loss to the Bills Sunday and is expected to be sidelined the remainder of the National Football League season.

A club spokesman said the 29-year-old Hawkins, in his eighth NFL season, apparently hit a yard marker or bench when he went out of bounds in the final period.

Hawkins, who caught two passes for 30 yards against the Bills, was admitted to Graduate Hospital Sunday night when the club returned home.

Mo. Valley, Wm. Jewell undefeated

Three still deadlocked in HOA football race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Missouri Valley, with a 14-6 triumph over Ottawa Saturday, and William Jewell, a 27-21 victor over Tarkio, appear to be the cream of the Missouri small college football crop by remaining undefeated after five games.

Both are 2-0 in the Heart of America Conference, as is Central Methodist which pounded Baker 33-7. Central Methodist is 3-1-1 over-all.

In Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association openers, Northwest Missouri tripped Central Missouri 15-7 and Southeast Missouri topped Southwest Missouri 13-6.

Lincoln University bumped Kentucky State 13-6 while Northeast Missouri was edged by Missouri Western 17-16 and Missouri-Rolla was staggered by Wisconsin-Milwaukee 45-7 outside the MIAA.

In independent play, Washington University improved its record to 2-1-1 with a 27-13 decision over Centre of Danville, Ky., and Culver-Stockton evened its mark at 3-3 by beating Iowa Wesleyan 14-8.

Kevin Hamill continued to inspire Missouri Valley with touchdown runs of 37 and 34 yards and a total of 202 yards rushing.

Northwest Missouri's Jim Albin kept up his pace by scoring two touchdowns and a two-point conversion for all the Bearcats' points. Albin, who had 220 yards on 37 carries, scored the clincher with 45 seconds left from the two; earlier, he hauled in a John Beeson pass for a 21-yard score.

William Jewell needed a 45-yard touchdown pass from Mike Thebeau to Dan Bullock with 5:39 left to pull its chestnuts from the fire. Weader Milentree scored twice: one on an 11-yard run and the other on a six-yard burst.

Rick Attig scored twice, both on one-yard thrusts, and gained exactly 100 yards to give Southeast the nod.

Lincoln quarterback Cornelius President heaved a 16-yard touchdown pass to Johnny McDaniels with 1:24 left to give the Tigers their 13th straight home victory at Jefferson City and their 12th consecutive verdict over Kentucky State.

Next Saturday Missouri Valley is at Central Methodist, Ottawa is at William Jewell and Graceland is at Tarkio in the HOA.

In MIAA tilts, Northeast Missouri is at Southwest Missouri, Southwest Missouri is at Central Missouri and Northwest Missouri is at Missouri-Rolla. Lincoln goes to Lorman, Miss., to play Alcorn A&M outside the league.

Missouri Southern goes to Pittsburg, Kan., State to be the only independent in the state to travel this weekend. Illinois College is at Culver-Stockton, Wabash is at Washington University and Iowa Wesleyan is at Missouri Western in other independent action.

Jack Nicklaus mounts
nine-shot golf margin

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — The competitive fire still smoldered in Jack Nicklaus, moments after his nine-under-par 62 matched his best round in 12 pro golf four years.

"Obviously, I'd love to attack the course again," said the game's greatest shotmaker Sunday after mounting the largest 54-hole lead of the 1973 season.

Nicklaus knew better. His 14-under-par 199, fashioned on the course he half owns, sent him nine shots up on New Zealander John Lister, who had 67 and 208.

"My main objective tomorrow," the Golden Bear said, "is to win the tournament. If 75 is LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky, one of the first states to grant 18-year-olds the right to vote, has now become the second state to grant them the right to wager at the race-track.

Under a rule change adopted by the Kentucky State Racing Commission Saturday, 18-year-olds will be able to place parimutuel wagers at Kentucky's five thoroughbred racing tracks, starting next month with the Churchill Downs fall meet.

ALAMO, Calif. — Sandra Haynie shot an even par 73 to win a $32,000 ladies professional golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 212.

all it takes without chances, that's what I want to shoot."

Another stroke back at 209 on the Nicklaus Golf Center layout was Lee Trevino. The merry Mexican had a third-round 69.

Then came Rod Curl and Tom Weiskopf at 210, J. C. Snead at 211 and Andy North and Tom Watson at 212. All came in with 70s on the wet, 6,915-yard layout in the Southwestern Ohio hills.

Nicklaus' round of 10 birdies and one bogey bettered the seven-shot lead Hale Irwin had after 54 holes in the Heritage five weeks ago.

Nicklaus seemed a cinch to earn a $25,000 victory, his sixth this year and 50th of his career. The triumph would move him past the idle Bruce Crampton in the 1973 money-winning lead.

Woman shows Filion
way to victory lane

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — Robyn Smith was scheduled to return to Belmont Park today to ride thoroughbreds, after showing Herve Filion that women can compete on the harness track, too.

The 29-year-old jockey, facing Filion in a match race billed as a "battle of the sexes," drove Adorada to victory by a neck Sunday at Monticello Raceway. She brought the 3-year-old filly pacer home in the slow time of 2:14 4-5.

There was no betting in the race.

Middle East war first crisis for Kissinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger's first crisis as secretary of state, the Middle East war, is a test of his endurance as well as of his capacity to focus on several major diplomatic fronts at the same time.

It also provides evidence of the limited power of the United States and its secretary of state.

In the last few hours before massive fighting erupted, Kissinger, impelled mostly by urgent warnings from the Israelis, tried to head the war off with a flurry of cables and telephone calls to King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Hassan el-Zayyat and others.

The effort did not succeed. Now the United States intends to call the U.N. Security Council into session with full awareness that the odds against a way being found there to end the hostilities are high.

Diplomatic sources noted that in an effort to shorten them Israel has left the United States a clear field, offering no diplomatic initiatives of its own.

But Washington probably can count at best on only Britain and Australia in the 15-nation council for any proposal that is not heavily weighted against Israel.

These sources expect the war to be settled in the field, the results depending primarily on whether Egypt can repair links across the Suez Canal to its forces in the Sinai.

The war broke out at a time when Kissinger was concentrating on two other areas—Europe and China. U.S. officials said he still intends to fly to London this weekend for meetings with European foreign ministers on the status of his proposed new Atlantic Charter. And, they said, his schedule still calls for visits to Japan and China toward the end of the month.

But now the Middle East fighting must dominate his attention.

Kissinger worked at the State Department from early Sunday morning until late into the night. He sought assessments from a panel of senior foreign-policy advisers known as the Special Action Group. He telephoned Ambassador Dobrynin.

Moscow has condemned Israel for the fighting, but its position is not entirely clear. British sources say the withdrawal of Soviet military advisers, technicians and dependents shortly before the war erupted suggests a Kremlin decision to disassociate from Egyptian-Syrian policy.

Israeli intelligence had warned in recent days of an Arab buildup along the Suez Canal and the cease-fire line with Syria.

But, Robert J. McCloskey, Kissinger's spokesman, stressed after the fighting broke out that the Arabs' military intentions appeared "defensive in nature."

The conflict caught the United States off guard. McCloskey said Arab foreign ministers who met with Kissinger last week had given no indication of any plans for military action.

War caught thousands of tourists in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The new Middle East war caught 30,000 to 35,000 tourists in Israel, the government estimates. But they aren't rushing to get out.

"There has been no alarm or mass exodus this time," said a spokesman for the Ministry of Tourism.

"One group said they would like to stay longer as a sign of solidarity, but their schedule called for departure tomorrow," the assistant manager of Tel Aviv's Dan Hotel reported.

Meanwhile, the Dan is filling up with foreign correspondents. "This has been customary for the past three wars," said the hotelman.

The night manager of another Tel Aviv hotel, the suburban Sharon, said 35 Americans had decided to advance their departure several days. One of the group, John C. Leader of St. Louis, Mo., said, "This is not a place to be sightseeing when there's a war going on." But he denied that there was any alarm in the group and added, "We went sightseeing today to Haifa, and except for seeing a lot of soldiers and military vehicles around, we felt no tension."

About 1,600 tourists left by plane Sunday night after Yom

Kippur, but the Ministry of Tourism said this was average after a weekend or holiday.

The air raid sirens sent the Israelis to the shelters twice on Saturday, but no Arab planes were sighted. There were no alarms Sunday.

In one Tel Aviv neighborhood, the children swarmed through the shelters beneath their apartment houses, painting pictures on the concrete walls and hanging decorations.

Jane Vaknin, an immigrant from Springfield, Ill., said her 4-year-old daughter, Yael, was frightened when they first went into the shelter Saturday. "Then she saw other children making an adventure of it."

"When we heard the war was on, I started preparing things—food, clothing and water for the shelter," said Ilana Balaban. "For the children it was all new. They are not kids of war like we were. They cried. My daughter Dorit was so scared she slept with us. Uri is 3 years old, and we had to hold him all the time in the shelter."

Housewives ignored government warnings against hoarding and jammed the supermarkets and grocery stores to stock up. Some shops rationed eggs, sugar and other items but promised "plenty more tomorrow and the day after that." Many women kept bathtubs full of water.

Experimental neon tubes were made in 1910 in which the pressurized gas glowed brightly when an electric current was passed through it. More than a decade passed before neon's brilliant orange-red light illuminated a new form of advertising.

Relatives say sentiment for MIAs waning in U.S.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — American sentiment for servicemen still listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia is waning in the wake of the dramatic repatriation of POWs from North Vietnam, say relatives of Missouri and Kansas MIAs.

Mrs. Earle Thomas of St. Louis, Missouri director of the National League of Families of Prisoners of War and Missing in Action, added that the Pentagon is attempting to "quiet" MIA families and trying to convince them there is little hope left for their loved ones.

The Defense Department lists 1,284 Americans unaccounted for in Southeast Asia.

"We certainly don't expect to come up with 1,300 live men," said Fred Plassmeyer, a member of the chapter in Kansas City. "But in so many cases, there is so little proof on which to base the assumption that they are dead. Judging by the happenstance way some of our other POWs have come back, there just has to be some of them alive."

Mrs. Thomas, whose husband, Air Force Lt. Robert J. Thomas, was shot down over Hanoi Dec. 18, 1972, met at Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base near here Sunday with other chapter directors from Kansas and the Kansas City metropolitan area.

She and about 50 other relatives of MIAs from around the country leave today for Southeast Asia where they hope to witness the release of information on Americans and others missing in the Laotian conflict. They plan to join others on a flight from Bangkok, Thailand to Vientiane, Laos.

An agreement signed Sept. 14 by the Laotian government and the Communist Pathet Lao stipulates a report would be made within 30 days of all those held as POWs or those who died in captivity.

The Defense Department lists 311 Americans as MIAs in Laos, Mrs. Thomas said, and if the Pathet Lao fail to release information on each of these men, massive public opinion will be needed to prod the Communists into divulging more satisfactory background.

The group has scheduled a national "Run for Freedom" Nov. 15 in an effort to boost support.

"We're going nowhere now," Mrs. Thomas said. "It's been nine months since the peace treaty (with North Vietnam). Not one body has been sent back. We've had almost zero information."

Cairo and Damascus under blackout orders

CAIRO (AP) — The usual Sunday crowds strolled the streets of Cairo, seemingly unconcerned that Israeli jets along the Suez Canal were only seven minutes away.

But by 9:30 p.m. the Egyptian capital was almost blacked out, and few people were on the streets. There were no air raids, but all the papers carried detailed instructions of what to do in case of one.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew and a blackout were ordered for Damascus, the other Arab war capital. The Syrian city was reported calm, but long lines were reported at bakeries and grocery stores.

The Egyptian government issued communiques on the progress of the fighting Saturday and early Sunday. But they dwindled as the fighting continued, and by 9:30 p.m. Sunday there had been no new report for nearly seven hours. There was speculation that things weren't going as well as the government would like.

The television network showed a two-minute film of Egyptian tanks and troops crossing a pontoon bridge over the Suez Canal, waving their guns jubilantly. Soldiers were also shown raising the Egyptian flag, and the announcer said it was happening in the Sinai Desert, which Israel has occupied since the 1967 war.

Cairo Radio announced that the sugar ration would be halved, and within half an hour many stores had none.

"This time I am sure the Egyptians will win," said Abas Ramadan, selling souvenirs outside the Cairo Museum. "What if we lost hundreds or even thousands but won this time?"

The city's leading hotels were reported fairly full of tourists, and one official said they seemed much calmer than those caught in Cairo by the 1967 war. Many were reported anxious to leave, but the Cairo airport was closed, and sea traffic out of Alexandria was halted.

Why did racial deaths occur in liberal Boston?

BOSTON (AP) — Why did it happen in Boston?

Two people were killed here last week. A young woman was burned to death. A retired man was robbed and stabbed to death. Police say he had been pelted with rocks. Both victims were whites killed by groups of young blacks.

"Isolated insanity," said Mayor Kevin White. "Boston is still the most walkable, livable city on a comparative basis with any city in the country."

Boston has a liberal reputation stretching from the 1830s, when it was the home of the antislavery abolitionist movement.

So why did it happen here?

Some of the answer might be found along a three-mile stretch of Columbia Road in the city's Dorchester section. It begins at Franklin Park, on the border of black Roxbury, and ends at a traffic circle near the racially troubled Columbia Point housing project and white, Irish South Boston.

It was about 800 yards from where Columbia Road runs into Franklin Park that Evelyn Wagner, 24, died Tuesday night. Carrying gasoline to her stalled car, she was stopped by six young blacks, forced to douse herself with the gasoline and was set afire.

And it was only 600 yards from the traffic circle at the other end that Ludivico Louis Barba, 65, went flying Thursday. Police first reported he had been stoned to death by 40 to 50 young blacks. The medical examiner reported Friday he died of stab wounds.

In between, Columbia Road runs through Dorchester, its sides flanked by "three-decker" wooden houses, red brick public buildings and small stores and shops. In the middle is Uphams Corner, a commercial and shopping area.

There are sheets of plywood in the windows of the stores where Columbia Road begins at Franklin Park. A decade or two ago, it was an area where Boston's Irish Catholics coexisted with Boston's Jewish community. Now almost all the faces on the street are black. Boston was nine per cent black in 1960, 16 per cent black by 1970.

Long confined to the dilapidated South End, the black community spread through Roxbury and into the tightly knit Dorchester neighborhoods that Boston's Irish and other white ethnic groups long had called home.

There is a scattering of abandoned houses along the Franklin Park end of Columbia Road, but not the desolation of some inner city areas. If there is glass in the streets or rubbish on the sidewalks, blacks will tell you it's because their neighborhood gets the short end of city services.

Along Columbia Road cruise the blue-and-white cars of the Boston police department. There is almost certainly a white man inside. The department is 98 per cent white and the source of much bitterness among blacks who say they are denied the protection they need to live without fear of crime and violence.

"You ever try standing in the street and stopping one of them?" asked Charles Warrington, a window washer. "They look across and just go right by. They don't care."

A mile down Columbia Road, in front of the A & D Bar-B-Cue, young black people gather. The first generation to grow up hearing "black is beautiful," they are different.

"These young black kids nowadays, they don't take no crap," said Robert Johnson, a middle-aged black man.

Many young blacks, here as elsewhere, are frustrated and angry, about schools they say don't educate them, jobs they can't find and a system they see as racist and not giving ground.

Their feelings find expression in many ways, in drugs and violence that prey on their own communities.

Another few hundred yards down the street, under a railroad bridge, Columbia Road changes. From the Radeal Hernandez School to Uphams Corner, blacks and whites live together.

The school, relatively new and its playground jammed with every type of recreation equipment, could stand as the physical embodiment of something that riles many of Boston's whites. Many of them feel the city gives too much attention to blacks and that they are paying for it.

"I figure I am working two jobs just to survive and they are not working and they are doing better than me," said a white fireman.

To many of the city's blacks, the school system represents everything they say is wrong with Boston's racial attitude. They point to the five-man School Committee—all white, and all but one Irish, lawyers and politicians—as proof of their isolation from political power.

In 1965, the Massachusetts Legislature passed a Racial Imbalance Law. No school could be more than 50 per cent black. Since it passed, the number of "imbalanced" schools in Boston has risen from 45 to 67.

Beyond Uphams Corner, Columbia Road twists through neighborhoods where black faces are still rare and resented. The houses are physically the same, but a few more have fresh coats of paint.

There is anger, resentment and fear here also, just as at the other end of the road.

"You are afraid to open the doors at night. You don't know what might be standing there," said Tom Dunner, a young white city worker who lives there. "I've lived in Dorchester all my life. It's changing. I guess it has to, but you don't have to like it."

If black kids are more ready to tangle than in times past, the white kids on their end of Columbia Road are no less willing. While many adults, both black and white, would rather see things worked out peacefully, they often appear powerless to check their children.

"I'll drop my pipe when they drop theirs," said an 18-year-old white youth when asked why he and his friends go out armed with hockey sticks and metal pipes every night.

Cooking in country communes

Cookbook author

Lucy Horton, who wrote "Country Commune Cooking," prepares an unusual and delicious vegetable dish, Sweet-and-Sour Beet-Carrot Saute.

Country Commune Cooking" (Coward, McCann & Geoghegan) came out at the end of last year. It fascinated me because the recipes and the tales that preface them give a vivid picture of what goes on in the kitchens of the counter-culture movement. Commune cooks, it goes without saying, are devoted to "natural" foods and Lucy's book is "organic with lapses." Since reading "Country Commune Cooking" I've looked into about two dozen other recent "health food" books but none is as interesting and entertaining.

Lucy, now in her late 20s, lives in a small commune in northern Vermont and tested her cookbook recipes there. But her practice-cooking started when she was in her teens. Her early years were spent in Chicago where her father was a sociology professor. When she plained, "and my interest in it endures. The Joy and Adelle Davis's 'Let's Cook It Right' are the overwhelming favorites in communes.

Here's our adaptation of Lucy Horton's favorite recipe from her cookbook: it came from The Motherlode in Oregon. When I tried it in my own kitchen, I found it one of the savoriest of vegetable dishes.

SWEET-AND-SOUR BEET-CARROT SAUTE
3 tablespoons oil
2 beets, pared and thinly sliced (about 1½ cups)
2 carrots, pared and thinly sliced (about 1 cup)
2 onions, peeled and halved and thinly sliced (about 1½ cups)
1 cup raisins
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice
2 tablespoons tamari was 13 the Horton family moved to New York City and because her mother — this country's leading book restorer — was busy setting up a new bindery, Lucky helped make the family dinners. "When I started to cook independently, my mother was delighted and gave me a lot of guidance," Lucy told me. She showed me her mother's well-worn copy of "The Joy of Cooking," an edition from the '30s. "I used to love to read it," Lucy ex-

2 cloves garlic, crushed
In a 10-inch skillet heat the oil and stir-fry the beets, carrots, onions and raisins for several minutes over medium-high heat. Add the remaining ingredients, lower heat, toss well and cover; steam, stirring several times, until vegetables are tender — 20 to 40 minutes.

Polly's pointers

Radio announcers, identify cities

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with radio announcers who give their station's call letters but not the city they are broadcasting from. Many times during our travels across the country we have wanted to know the weather conditions ahead as we travel with a truck camper and need to know wind and storm conditions. We listen to the weather reports and then later learn that what we heard came from another state. Please, radio announcers, state and the name of the city at least every 15 minutes. These letters mean nothing to a traveler. — MRS. L.R.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I do hope you or some of the readers can help me. I have some place mats and napkins that were not promptly laundered after use and some of these linens are a cream color, which makes the use of a strong bleach impossible because the color would fade. I have tried soaking in detergent solutions that are advertised as being able to remove stains, but with no luck. — RUTH

DEAR POLLY — In reply to Madelyn's problem with the thread "eye" on the back neckline of a dress. I want to tell her that I insert an orange stick or other similar round object that fits through the "eye." Apply clear nail polish and allow it to dry before the stick is removed. She will discover the "eye" is then easy to find when she wants to hook her neck-closing above the zipper. I have treated those on all my clothes this way and found it works well. — J. W.

DEAR POLLY — When dyeing clothing, to eliminate sediment from the solution floating in the full dye mixture I mix the package of dye in a pint jar of hot water and shake it well. The top is then removed and the opening covered with the toe of an old stocking. Turn the jar upside down, letting the dye run through the stocking into a basin with the remaining amount of hot water. The sediment that would have been in the dye mixture is trapped in the stocking, which is just thrown away. — CAROLYN

DEAR POLLY — When making pancakes I mix the batter in an empty milk carton. There is no stirring, just close the top and shake, no bowl to wash as the carton is thrown away. Also, it pours so easily. A half gallon carton is just the right size for the amount I make for my family. — LISA

Why would a nice girl like Lucy Horton, a graduate of Bryn Mawr, hitchhike over 12 states and part of Canada visiting 43 country communes? Well, why else but to engage in one of America's favorite sports — gathering recipes for a cookbook.

When Lucy studied at the prestigious eastern college she majored in the classical archaeology of ancient Greece and Rome. Those courses helped with her book. "I knew from my training at Bryn Mawr that if I wanted to do a good job of reporting the eating habits of present-day country communes, I'd have to research the subject thoroughly and document every statement of fact," Lucy says. And Lucy's clear blue eyes, looking steadily at you through granny glasses, make you trust her.
